ROAD TRIP

FROM BRUSSELS TO THE CHAMPAGNE REGION AND BEYOND

Brussels is centrally located in the heart of Europe, so a trip to the Champagne Region of France is just a three hour drive away. The four day weekend allowed the perfect opportunity to retrace my steps visiting some of the favorite places I discovered during a two year stay on my barge in France. My fondest memory was arriving in the small village of Marieul-sur-Aÿ in the heart of the Grand Cru region of Champagne not far from Epernay. During the month of April in 1998 Stuart and I traveled, via the canals, from Saint Symphorian, near Dijon, to the Champagne Region. April had a lot of rainy and dreary days that year. On May 1, 1998 we tied up to a new dock in the quaint village of Marieul-sur-Aÿ.

A small Flower and Champagne Festival was underway and just as the sun came out a friendly lady stepped on the dock and greeted us with two flutes of champagne. At that moment I knew we had arrived! We spent the next three months tied to that dock and via mopeds did our best to visit many of the more than 500 Champagne Houses in Champagne Region. We concentrated on the Grand Cru area, designated as the area where the best of the best grapes are grown.

Ten years later, May 1, 2008, we returned to Marieul-Sur-Aÿ, via car. While the village is still quaint and beautiful we found the small Flower and Champagne Festival had grown into a huge Brocante/Vide Grenier (Flea Market) that spanned one kilometer along the canal and throughout the town. We located a large, tent covered, concession selling flutes of Champagne. It is nice to know some things don't change.

We continued our drive through the Grand Cru region to the village of Louvois and our favorite small Champagne House, Guy de Chassey which produces champagne to rival all the famous Champagne houses at less than half the price. The gift shop was open for tasting (degustation). We were delighted to taste the familiar flavor and sparkling bubbles of their outstanding Brut. After purchasing a few bottles, we continued our ride through the town of Aÿ and up the hill to the famous abbey where Dom Perignon discovered champagne. The view of the valley, with all the beautiful vines, is spectacular from this point.

During road trips through Europe we have discovered an economical solution for lodging. We stay at Hotel Formule1. Please note, this concept isn't for everyone but it fits our comfort requirements. We don't linger in hotel rooms, we just want a clean, quiet, comfortable place to sleep and shower. This chain of hotels, usually located along the auto routes, is modern and clean. The rooms are small. For two guests the room includes the basics, a double bed with a single bunk-bed, a TV, a window that opens and sink. Down the hall you will find separate small rooms for showers and bathrooms WC. These small facilities are self cleaning. As you exit the shower or WC room, the door locks and a red light indicates the room is being cleaned. All this for €33 per night for two people. Also, breakfast can be purchased for €3.70 per person which includes, coffee, tea, chocolate, milk, orange juice, cereal, bread, butter, jam, apple sauce and yogurt. You must reserve and pay for breakfast the evening before and the seating is counter style in the small lobby area. For more information go to: hotelformule1.com

The next stop in France was the highlight of the trip. We enjoyed lunch at the Michelin Three Star restaurant Côte Saint Jacques located in Joigny. This is a major eating event that is priced at the opposite end of the scale from our Hotel Formule1 room. Save this restaurant for special occasions since it is quite pricey but well worth it. The Chef/Owner is Jean-Michel Lorain. The restaurant is located along the Yvonne River and the setting is quite elegant but not stuffy. When we arrived we were seated on a lovely deck overlooking the river where drinks and appetizers were served. Next we were escorted to the dining room, one floor down, via a polished copper elevator. The menu has many wonderful choices. The food was spectacular, my small lamb chops melted in my mouth. Stu's duck was prepared perfectly. After lunch we were escorted back to the serene deck for coffee and tea. This lovely 3 hour meal was served at a leisurely pace by friendly waiters. We now understand why so few restaurants rank the Michelin Three Star rating.

After another night at a Formula 1 hotel near the picturesque town of Auxerre we ventured southward to Gien. This city is home of the famous Gien faience museum and factory. The museum has on display many beautiful pieces of antique Gien faience. The factory store is where the "seconds" of the beautiful Gien dishes are sold. After loading our selections in the car we headed northward for the Sancerre region. In 2000, while barging through this area we developed a fondness for Sancerre wine. Off the barge our mode of transportation were two mopeds which we rode through the vineyards and up into the windy lanes of the small village of Bué. While exploring we happened upon Domaine Bailly-Reverdy winery. The light fruity tasting white Sancerre wine they produce is delicious. It had been eight years since that first visit, we wondered if we could locate the small vintner. After driving the windy roads we turned a corner and saw the familiar small building. We enjoyed a tasting of their 2004 and 2006 whites and we were lucky enough to taste a 1989 from the owners private stock. The owner invited us on a tour of the cellars. It is a modern operation which spans a large underground area with many caves stacked with aging wine. The owner explained that during the past few years the vineyards have been experiencing some significant rain falls in very brief periods of time. The rain comes down with such force it tends to wash the top soil away. To alleviate the problem grass has been planted between the rows of grapes to help hold the soil in place. The grapes of the wine we liked were grown in the Chavignol area of Sancerre.

On weekends the small villages of France have Brocantes or Vide Greniers (Flea Markets). While driving around we spotted a Brocante sign and entered the location in our GPS. After 10 years of searching we spotted a Riddling Rack for sale at a Brocante near Auxerre. These racks were used by the Champagne houses to store the young bottles of champagne with the top of the bottles angled downward. Each day the Riddler would turn the bottles, by hand, a 1/4 of a turn and ever so slightly change the degree of the downward tilt of the bottle. This process gradually moves the yeast and sediment to the cap of the bottle for removing. During the past few years, the Riddlers have lost their jobs to computer operated platforms programmed to rotate the crates of Champagne bottles in the way the Riddlers did by hand. We found a rack but would it fit in the back of our Mini cooper with our luggage, the champagne, wine and dishes we had purchased? With many adjustments and re-loading attempts the Riddling Rack was ours. We now have a unique wine/champagne rack.

You may not want a Riddling Rack but why not take advantage of living in the heart of Europe and travel by car or train to a few of the wonderful sights Europe has to offer. Watch the TMA Trips section for some great opportunities to see Europe and let TMA do the driving!

to GERY JACOBS, who will retire on Friday, May 30. Gery started working for the U.S. Government on November 19, 1973 as a Clerk-Messenger in the U.S. Information Service (USIS) of what was then called "The U.S. Mission to the European Communities" (USEC). 1973 ~ Joseph A. Greenwald was then the U.S. Ambassador to the EC (EU), and Arthur Hoffman the Public Affairs Officer; Edmond Leburton was the Belgian Prime Minister. On November 4 the Dutch experienced their first car-free Sunday; on December 3 OPEC doubled the price of crude oil. The movies The Exorcist, The Sting and Live and Let Die were released. Gery swiftly moved up the ranks, and played a pivotal role in the development of the Mission's computerized Distribution and Record System (DRS), which soon turned into USIS's major management tool. He also provided invaluable assistance during cabinet-level visits to Brussels. Gery established and maintained an outstanding range of contacts, and became the first point of contact of the Brussels-based international press corps at the U.S. Mission. He showed great personal interest in the ever growing political dimension of the U.S.-EU relationship, and his coverage invariably included key developments in both the political and the economic spheres.

Thank you, Gery, for your 34 years and 6 months of dedicated US Government service. We wish you all the best for the future, and many more years in good health!

Farewell, A u Revoir, Vaarwel

The cup was won by Argentina, beating the Netherlands 3-1 in the final; in September the Camp David Accords were signed between Israel and Egypt and in October Polish cardinal Karol Wojtyla became the 264th pope. Leo Tindemans was the Belgian Prime Minister then, and Anne Cox Chambers the U.S. Ambassador to Belgium. Jacques was a top-notch professional painter and decorator. He was invariably assigned the most difficult painting and wallpapering jobs and excelled as the finest artisan of the painting crew. In the mid-nineties he switched to the plumbing, heating, ventilation and air conditioning team. He and his team mates were heavily relied on in keeping the temperature in the Embassy and JAS at acceptable levels during several hot summers.

What is Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD)?

PTSD is a real illness. People may get PTSD after living through a disturbing or frightening experience. It can be treated with medicine and therapy.

You can get PTSD after you have been:

- Raped or sexually abused
- Hit or harmed by someone in your family
- A victim of a violent crime
- In an airplane or car crash
- In a hurricane, tornado, or fire
- In a war
- In an event where you thought you might be killed, or
- After you have seen any of these events.

If you have PTSD, you often have nightmares or scary thoughts about the experience you went through. You try to stay away from anything that reminds you of your experience.

You may feel angry and unable to trust or care about other people. You may always be on the lookout for danger. You can feel very upset when something happens suddenly or without warning.

Further information about depression can be found on the National Institute for Mental website: <http://www.nimh.nih.gov/index.shtml>
